This tragedy introduced our author to the acquaintance of that eminent actor, by whose favour he had a second tragedy, named Athelstane, represented at Drury-Lane theatre. This was also well received by the public, but did not become so popular as Barbarossa, nor did it preserve so long the possession of the stage. In 1757 appeared his well-known Estimate of the Manners and Principles of the Times. The chief design of this performance was to show, that a vain, luxurious, and selfish effeminacy in the higher ranks of life marked the character of the age; and to point out the effects as well as sources of this effeminacy. Several antagonists appeared, some of whom were neither destitute...
